

DaZ exercises for home:

Reading

(Status: November 2020)

Reading in German never hurts! It is also perfectly normal for children to start by reading books in an unfamiliar language that are actually written for younger children. With more practice, this usually adapts automatically, as the desire to read more interesting books develops as the skills increase. Looking at or reading books together is also helpful.

- Under the following link you will find various online newspapers for children:
<https://www.blinde-kuh.de/sammeln/kinderzeitungen.html>
- Children also read a lot when researching on the Internet on German sites. One of the best known German search engines for children is:
<https://www.blinde-kuh.de/index.html>
- A well-known German weekly newspaper is "Die Zeit". Every week there is also a children's page: "Zeit Leo". On the corresponding website you can read some articles from it here in Malaysia:
<https://leo.zeitverlag.de/das-magazin.html>
- The magazine "Geolino" also offers plenty of reading material on the Internet:
<https://www.geo.de/geolino>
- Every student has access to Antolin. Here the children can answer questions about books they have read and collect points. There is also a quiz on English books. Every week there are also new news online for reading.
<https://antolin.westermann.de/>
- Book exchange among classmates
- Some websites also offer free e-books for download. All you have to do is register on the respective websites.
<https://www.hugendubel.de/de/category/browse?nav=90592&sort=2&pagerOffset=15>
https://www.ebook.de/de/category/62239/kinder_jugendbuecher.html
<https://www.thalia.de/bz/kostenlose-ebooks/201564-202144-215471/?allayout=FLAT&filterPATHROOT=4893&filterPATHROOT%2F4893=18536&sort=sfva&allayout=FLAT>